Question 1. Has Lushkoff become a beggar by circumstance or by choice?

Answer:

Lushkoff chose to become a beggar. He was banished for intoxication when he was a choir member in Russia. Rather than going after another career, Lushkoff decided to become a beggar.

Question 2. What reasons does he give Sergei for telling lies?

Answer:

Lushkoff claims that his alcoholism caused him to be expelled from the Russian choir. He lies because no one would ever assist him or offer him money if he revealed the truth.

Question 3. Is Lushkoff a willing worker? Why, then, does he agree to chop wood for Sergei?

Answer:

No, he does not labor willingly. His strength has been damaged by alcohol, and he has no desire to work. He consents to cut wood for Sergei not out of hunger or a desire to labor, but rather because his own words have imprisoned and humiliated him.

Question 4. Sergei says, "I am happy that my words have taken effect." Why does he say so? Is he right in saying this?

Answer:

"I am happy that my words have taken effect," remarks Sergei. He says this because he believes he is the reason Lushkoff went from being a beggar to a notary. This is partially accurate, but Lushkoff's current identity was not solely shaped by Sergei.

Lushkoff claims that Olga, Sergei's cook, is the reason for his metamorphosis, even though he owes Sergei for teaching him the proper route and allowing him to handle the task of cutting wood at home. It was not Lushkoff, but her who chopped the wood.

Question 5. Lushkoff is earning thirty-five roubles a month. How is he obliged to Sergei for this?

Answer:

Lushkoff receives a monthly salary of 35 roubles. He owes Sergei this since he might still be a beggar making up stories about being a student or teacher if he hadn't seen Sergei. However, Sergei gave him a job that allowed him to escape the hole.

Question 6. During their conversation, Lushkoff reveals that Sergei's cook, Olga, is responsible for the positive change in him. How has Olga saved Lushkoff?

Answer:

After bringing Lushkoff to his house, Sergei assigned him a wood-chopping chore. He requested that his cook Olga bring Lushkoff to the woodshed so he may chop wood.

Lushkoff informs Sergei that, during the entire time, Olga was the one who cut the wood when he became a notary public and met him by mistake. She chopped instead of letting Lushkoff do it since she felt sorry for him.

According to Lushkoff, her generosity helped him become a better person and make a living.
