NCERT Class 7 English Honeycomb Poem Chapter 9 Summary

"Garden Snake" is a poem penned by Muriel L. Sonne, highlighting that not all snakes are harmful. Before delving into the poem, Muriel poses a query, asking if you've ever witnessed a snake engaging in combat with a mongoose, burrowing into a hole, or swimming in a river.

The poem unfolds with the poet recounting an encounter with a snake, prompting them to flee out of the belief that all snakes pose a threat. Seeking solace, the poet confides in their mother about the incident. In response, the mother reassures the child that not all snakes are dangerous, particularly the kind found in gardens, which primarily feed on insects. Encouraged by this insight, the poet observes a similar snake in the garden without fear, understanding it to be harmless.
