NCERT Solutions for Class 10 English Footprints without Feet Chapter 1 Overview

This tale centers on Tricki, Mrs. Pumphery's adorable pet dog, who had gained weight and laziness from his mistress's overfeeding and inactivity. Concerned about his listless state, Mrs. Pumphery sought advice from Mr. James Herriot, a veterinary surgeon, regarding his course of action. Tricki's bad health condition was brought to Mr. Herriot's attention, and he had surgery there. Tricki was also put on a strict diet and encouraged to exercise frequently.

Without any medication, the dog made a full recovery in just two weeks. Tricki's mistress was soon contacted by Mr. Herriot to come pick up her pet. Mrs. Pumphery arrived quickly and was taken aback to see how lively and healthy her pet had grown. She told Mr. Herriot how happy and grateful she was, calling it a surgical victory.

Question 1:

Why is Mrs Pumphrey worried about Tricki?

Answer:

Tricki was not eating, which worried and irritated Mrs Pumphrey about his health. He would throw up and refuse to eat his favorite foods. He didn't seem interested in going for regular walks and instead spent all of his time painting while lying on a mat.

Question 2:

What does she do to help him? Is she wise in this?

Answer:

At first, Mrs. Pumphrey believed that Tricki had become lethargic because he didn't seem to have much energy. She figured he had to be malnourished, so she began to feed him little extras to bolster him up in between meals, some malt and cod liver oil, and a bowl of Horlicks at night to put him to sleep. She also did not offer him enough exercise and would overindulge in cream cakes and chocolates.

Tricki gained enormous weight as a result of all this indulgence and pampering, resembling a sausage with a leg on every corner. His mistress made the very poor decision to overfeed him, which exacerbated his illness and made him more lethargic and large. But when Mrs. Pumphrey realized how miserable Tricki was, she became upset and sought the advice of Dr. Herriot, a veterinary surgeon, in an attempt to improve Tricki's health.

Question 3:

Who does 'I' refer to in this story?

Answer:

In the story, 'I' refers to Dr James Herriot, a veterinary surgeon.

Read and Find Out (Page 3)*Question 1:

Is the narrator as rich as Tricki's mistress?

Answer:

A few places in the narrative imply that Dr. Herriot was not as wealthy as Tricki's mistress, Mrs. Pumphrey. This is clear from the fact that the narrator could not provide Tricki with an opulent life, such as a warm, loose-fitting bed filled with his favorite cushions, toys, and rubber rings, as well as bowls for each meal of the day. Instead, he made Tricki a bed in a warm box next to the other dogs' beds.

Additionally, the doctor was unable to pay for a full crew of maids and carers, similar to Mrs. Pumphrey, to look after Tricki, her pet, and ensure his sole well-being.

Question 2:

How does he treat the dog?

Answer:

Tricki was not given unnecessary food products by Dr. Herriot. Instead, he handled him more like an indolent, overweight dog in need of a restricted diet and plenty of exercise. During the first few days, he reduced his food intake and kept him under close supervision.

With time, he gave Tricki a more nutritious diet and freed him up to engage in physical activity to enhance his health. The dog's condition began to gradually improve, and he quickly recovered from his ailment without the need for any form of medication.

Question 3:

Why is he tempted to keep Tricki on as a permanent guest?

Answer:

To strengthen Tricki, Mrs. Pumphrey began bringing in fresh eggs, two dozen at a time. Later on, brandy and wine bottles also started to show up. The storyteller and his companions relished brunch consisting of two eggs apiece, wine, and brandy designated for Tricki.

These were days of profound satisfaction, beginning with a hearty breakfast of an additional egg, continuing and enhancing with a lunchtime wine, and culminating in a sumptuous evening by the fire with brandy. The allure of having Tricki stay on as a permanent guest to partake in the opulent infusion of food was undeniable for Herriot.

Question 4:

Why does Mrs Pumphrey think the dog's recovery is "a triumph of surgery"?

Answer:

When Mrs. Pumphrey saw Dr. Herriot, she believed Tricki was very sick, but in just two weeks, her cat fully recovered from his illness. She was relieved to discover that he had changed into an animal with strong, supple muscles. Tricki made a huge leap and glided into his mistress's lap when Dr. Herriot brought him to Mrs. Pumphrey.

His remarkable recovery without the need for medication was noted, and she thanked the doctor and expressed her satisfaction by calling the dog's recovery "a triumph of surgery."

Think about it (Page 6)

Question 1:

What kind of a person do you think the narrator, a veterinary surgeon, is? Would you say he is tactful as well as full of common sense?

Answer:

The narrator was a highly astute and diplomatic veterinarian. Since he was aware that Tricki was not unwell, he treated the dog with kindness and propriety.

He could tell from the dog's lethargic demeanor that his mistress had overfed him, which was why he had become so large. As a result, he changed his diet and got him moving instead of doing surgery to treat him. Tricki recovered from his ailment in two weeks under the doctor's guidance.

Certainly, Dr. Herriot possessed tact because he was able to convince Mrs. Pumphrey to admit Tricki to the hospital for surgery. He was perfectly capable of giving her pet the care he needed to become a lively companion. After the dog recovered, he told Mrs.

Pumphrey to come get Tricki, even though he was tempted to retain her pet as a regular visitor because of the rich food that his mistress occasionally supplied.

Question 2:

Do you think Tricki was happy to go home? What do you think will happen now?

Answer:

Yes, Tricki missed his opulent life and was glad to be back home because he loved his mistress so much. Like at the hospital, he didn't have any friends at home, yet he looked just as eager to see his mistress after two weeks. Given Tricki's slowness, we hope Mrs.

Pumphrey will take future precautions regarding Tricki's nutrition and health and will make an effort to get her pet moving, as previously advised by Dr. Herriot.

Question 3:

Do you think this is a real-life episode or mere fiction? Or is it a mixture of both?

Answer:

The narrative appears to be a combination of fiction and actual events. As Mrs. Pumphrey did, it is extremely normal for wealthy individuals to overfeed their pets out of love and care. We have seen that the dog was feasting and growing slow and fat as a result of her pampering.

In a similar vein, wealthy individuals who attempt to provide their dogs with an affluent life and frequently spoil them are not out of the ordinary. It might be improbable, though, for a veterinarian like Dr. Herriot, who went above and above to deceive the owner about surgery to spare her pet needless excesses.

Talk about it (Page 7)

Question 1:

This episode describes the silly behavior of a rich woman who is foolishly indulgent, perhaps because she is lonely. Do you think such people are merely silly, or can their actions cause harm to others?

Answer:

Tricki was overfed by Mrs. Pumphrey, which was a foolish move that negatively impacted her pet's health. In an attempt to show Tricki her love and affection, she was forcing him to indulge in fatty meals. His condition deteriorated to the point where he was too fat and lethargic to even go for short walks.

Wealthy individuals, such as Mrs. Pumphrey, frequently reward their dogs for foolish behavior, such as overfeeding, to improve their health, which could otherwise have harmful consequences.

Question 2:

Do you think there are also parents like Mrs Pumphrey?

Answer:

Indeed, some parents overindulge and pamper their children, just like Mrs. Pumphrey did. Despite being aware of the detrimental effects of overeating on one's health, they attempt to overfeed their dogs or children. It is essential that carers, such as Mrs. Pumphrey, keep a careful eye on their family members and pets and maintain a healthy lifestyle.

Question 3:

What would you have done if you were: (i) a member of the staff in Mrs. Pumphrey's household, (ii) a neighbor? What would your life have been like, in general?

Answer:

1. If I had been one of the employees in her home, I would not have mindlessly followed Mrs. Pumphrey's instructions to feed Tricki without thinking about the potential consequences. In actuality, I would have fed him by the veterinarian's recommendations and made sure he got enough exercise to keep him active and healthy.

In addition, I would have avoided bringing the extraneous items—like the toys and cushions—to the hospital and instead provided Tricki a well-balanced, easily digestible food.

2. If I had been Mrs. Pumphrey's neighbor, I would have suggested that she keep Tricki physically active by playing, running, or taking walks in addition to adhering to a strict diet. I would have advised her to seek the opinion of a veterinarian and adhere to his recommendations to maintain her pet's health if his condition had gotten worse.

In addition, I would have offered kindness and support during such a delicate time when Tricki was meant to be admitted to the hospital. To the best of my abilities, I would have made an effort to show Mrs. Pumphrey compassion and understanding.

Question 4:

What would you have done if you were in the narrator's place?

Answer:

Had I been the narrator, I would have handled Tricki with the same affection and understanding. I would have treated Tricki with the same care and caution that Mr. James Herriot did. Given Mrs. Pumphrey's devotion to her beloved pet, Tricki, I would have been a little more stringent when recommending that she place Tricki on a balanced diet.

In addition, I would have resisted the need to have Tricki stay with me permanently in my hospital and would not have eaten Tricki's share of the eggs, wine, and brandy that Mrs. Pumphrey supplied.
